

LITTON HURT;
SHAMROCK
DISMANTLED

Everything Above Deck on
This New British Challenger
Carried Away in a Sudden Squall.

SIR THOMAS FALLS
DOWN HATCHWAY

The Hull of the Racer Is Uninjured, and She Will Soon Be Put in Shape for Sailing.

WEYMOUTH, England, April 17.—Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger for the America's cup was dismantled in a squall today shortly after leaving this harbor preparatory to another trial spin with the Shamrock II. Her mast, as it fell over the side, carried several of the crew and all the gear and canvas aboard.

One man was drowned and several persons, including Sir Thomas, who was knocked down a hatchway, were bruised or otherwise injured. The man who was drowned was a brother-in-law of Capt. Wrings. He was handling a binocular glass to Sir Thomas at the time he was swept overboard. One of Sir Thomas' hands was injured, but not seriously. The yacht was maneuvering in the roadstead under mainsail, jib, foresail and gaff topsails prior to the start. A strong northeast breeze was blowing, but there was nothing in the nature of a gale. The boats seemed to be fetched out of the shelter of the breakwater, the Shamrock III leading on a tack out seaward, apparently with the intention of testing the strength of the wind outside. The breeze had just waned enough to keep her lee fall lipping.

Before the start Sir Thomas Lipton, Ratsey, the sailmaker, and Col. Sharmun Crawford, vice-commander of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, boarded the challenger, which made a magnificent picture as, under her cloud of canvas, she drove past North.

The Erin had taken up a position to send the boats away round a triangular course, and everything seemed to promise a fine race. The Shamrock III then made a short board on the port tack, dragging through a heavy squall with her lee decks awash.

At about 100 yds. m., when nearly a mile off shore, she went about on the starboard tack to stand up to cross the line, when a sudden gust of wind sweeping out of Weymouth bay struck the yacht and completely dismantled her. The weather rigging screws of her main shrouds and her mast carried away close to the deck and with it went her spars, sails and gear in a confused mass of wreckage.

The yacht's decks were crowded with Sir Thomas Lipton's guests, officers and men, and it seemed impossible that the disaster was not attended by serious loss of life. Deprived of its main support, the intricate steel tubular mast away for a fraction of a second and went overboard, creating great havoc as it fell.

So sudden was the calamity that the yacht lay wrecked and helpless before those on board realized what had happened. Fortunately most of the tremendous weight of the gear fell clear of the deck, as otherwise the disaster must have been multiplied tenfold.

As it was, one life was lost, that of a member of the crew named Collier. The rattle of blocks and wire ropes on the metal deck of the boat drowned all other sounds for the time.

Clearing away the wreckage was quite a difficult task in consequence of the nature of the spars and gear. The Erin passed a line to the wrecked yacht and stood by to give all the aid necessary. Sir Thomas, who was extremely distressed by the fatality and the injury to the yacht, said that the accident occurred absolutely without warning, and much quicker than when the Shamrock II was similarly dismantled in the Solent.

The hull of the Shamrock III was not damaged. The mast, which was carried away above deck, was at that time only one beam, which was about seven feet above deck. As the big spar with its weight of canvas became heavier owing to the water in it, the mast again buckled its head, going down till it fell on the bottom. It is believed it will be comparatively easy to repair the mast, but a whole suit of canvas is ruined. A barge with a crane was soon on the scene to raise the broken mast, after which the Shamrock III will be taken to her moorings inside the breakwater.

Just as a race between the Shamrock II and the Shamrock I and the Sybil was being started in the Solent of Southampton, May 22, 1901, a sudden squall struck the yacht and carried away the mast of the Shamrock II. The topmast of the Shamrock II was carried away, but the mainmast was not. The Erin was the last to see the Shamrock II, which was seen to be carried away by the squall. The Shamrock I was also considerably damaged. No serious injury was done to the yacht, but King Edward, who was on the Shamrock II, had a narrow escape.

Gen. Bates is in command. CHICAGO, April 17.—Gen. J. C. Bates, the new commander of the Department of the Lakes, arrived here today. Gen. Bates comes from the Department of the Missouri, of which he has been in command since April 1. His successor in that district is Gen. J. C. Bates, who will take charge about July 1. Gen. Bates was accompanied by his aid, Capt. Horace M. Reave.

JULIA HELEN HAAG.

LAW ENLISTED TO GET LOVE TOKEN

Richard Lippincott and Julia Haag Go From Courting Into Court.

A solitary diamond ring, an alleged engagement, passionate love letters and a lovers' quarrel will play their parts in the lawsuit of Richard Lippincott against Julia Haag, to be tried next Friday. The role will be played by the ring.

This ring, valued at $150, is claimed by Miss Haag to have been given her as a token of her engagement to Lippincott. He denies that there ever was an engagement, or even an understanding. He says he merely loaned her the ring as an act of friendship.

Lippincott obtained a writ of replevin for the disputed article on April 2. The question of the rightful ownership is now to be settled.

The young couple, she is 21, while he is 23, met last summer. According to her version, they were engaged within a few weeks, and the ring was given to her as a pledge of this happy condition of things.

Lippincott admits that the ring was given to her by him, but he claims that it was a loan, and that she returned it to him shortly after they became acquainted.

His explanation is that she admired it while he was wearing it, it being made in such a way that it can be worn by anyone, and that he permitted her to have the use of it for a time.

The friendship, or engagement, whichever it was, lasted until December. Then a misunderstanding occurred. They quarreled and Lippincott bade the lady and the ring farewell.

On calmer consideration he saw no reason why he should not regain the ring. He asked for the jewel. It was refused. Miss Haag considered that it was her own ring—her engagement ring. As such she could dispose of it as she saw proper. It perhaps was a solace for the loss of her friend. She would retain it.

Demands for the restoration of the diamond were made during January, February and March. Mrs. Lippincott, the young man's mother, joined in the pursuit of the elusive ornament. She tried to obtain it, but failed.

Finally Mrs. Haag had to the law. Armed with a replevin writ, an unromantic conflict followed. In which he confesses his passion in no uncertain terms. These will duly appear in court.

Lippincott, whose attorneys are Edwards and Peters, is a clerk of the Fairbanks Soap Co. He resides with his mother at 2014 N. 10th street. He is a member of the Cabanne Club.

Miss Haag, whose legal interests are being looked after by Attorney E. W. Hagedorn, is a cashier last year in a downtown establishment. She lives at 4008 West Belle place.

HENRY T. SIMON DIES

Former Member of Simon-Gregory Co. Succumbs to Heart Failure at His Home.

Henry T. Simon, aged 74 years, one of the well-known business men of St. Louis, a few years ago, died quite suddenly Friday morning at his home at 2821 Locust street.

Mr. Simon had not been well for several days, suffering from a severe cold. Thursday he was better and was down to dinner. Friday morning Mrs. Simon was attracted to his room by his loud breathing and found when she reached him dead.

ARMY OFFICER
CUTS HIS THROAT

Lieut. Thomas Howard Ends Life at Baptist Sanitarium.

WRITES HIS MOTHER LETTER BEFORE THE DEED

Had Been Suffering From Paralysis—Mind Said to Have Been Affected.

Lieut. Thomas F. Howard of the United States army drew a razor across his throat at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium at 4 o'clock Friday morning. When found after two hours by an attendant he was dead.

Howard left a letter, sealed and stamped. It was addressed to his mother, Mrs. J. H. Howard, Boerne, Tex. He also left a note for the sanitarium officials, directing them to notify his mother and the war department at Washington.

Lieut. Howard was a graduate of West Point, and stood high in army circles. He had a bright career in store and had won praise for meritorious service in the West. Four or five years ago his health gave way and a stroke of paralysis affected his lower limbs, incapacitating him for active service. Medical attention of the best failed to restore him to health. He was given an extended leave on three-quarters pay.

Lieut. Howard came to the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium Nov. 7 last. In the last few months he failed rapidly, and Supt. Cadwallader says his mind began to give way.

Several days ago, Dr. Cadwallader says the hospital attendants became convinced that he was irrational and he notified the army officials.

Thursday night Lieut. Howard spent several hours writing the letter which will be forwarded to his mother and the dispatches he left for the sanitarium officials.

The suicidal effort was a determined one. His throat was gashed in several places. The remains are being held to await the disposition of the relatives.

Lieut. Howard was 38 years old. It is stated that he knew that his death was only a question of time and that treatment could only give him temporary relief.

SOME DOUBT ABOUT SATURDAY

"Probably Fair" Is Hypothetical Weather Diagnosis for Week's Close.

More fair weather and it may last over Saturday and it may not.

Dr. Hyatt says, "Fair Friday night and probably Saturday, moderate temperature."

This cold snap is worse in some points than it is in St. Louis. They had frost Friday morning at Springfield, Ill., Fort Smith, Ark., and pretty generally through Kansas and freezing temperature in Colorado.

In Los Angeles 2.5 inches of rain were reported and the rains were very heavy throughout the entire southern part of California.

But as a general rule the weather over the country was fair.

"LADY" BARRINGTON AT HOME

Insurance Policy From Bogus Lord Refused by His Disappointed Wife.

Wilhelmina Grace Cochrane, who no longer considers herself the wife of "Lord" P. Seymour Barrington, erstwhile workhouse prisoner, has returned to the home of her father in Kansas City, Kan.

Miss Cochrane has assumed her maiden name and refuses to accord any recognition to Barrington, who is making overtures for a reconciliation. For formality's sake, she says, and to please her relatives, the courts will be asked to declare the ceremony null and void.

Her relatives in Kansas City were at first incensed because she did not appear at the intended wedding, for they say they would have been deceived to have delayed it until Barrington's wealth and nobility could be investigated.

Since the denouement, however, they have rallied to her aid and are endeavoring to extricate her from the position in which she placed herself.

The Cochrane have resided in Kansas City for 15 years and are well known there. Barrington procured a $10,000 policy on his life yesterday, made out in favor of the woman who has repudiated him.

W. E. Vorse, an insurance agent, called at the home of Miss Cochrane's sister, Mrs. R. R. Elliott, 438 West Belle street, and was refused admission.

Barrington was in the house when he was refused admission. The door was closed in his face when he insisted upon the acceptance of the policy.

CITY OWNERSHIP FAVORED

Committee on Municipal Corporations of Illinois House Agrees on Bill to Acquire Street Railways.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 17.—The House committee on municipal corporations has agreed on a bill authorizing every city in the state to own, construct, purchase, mortgage and lease street railways.

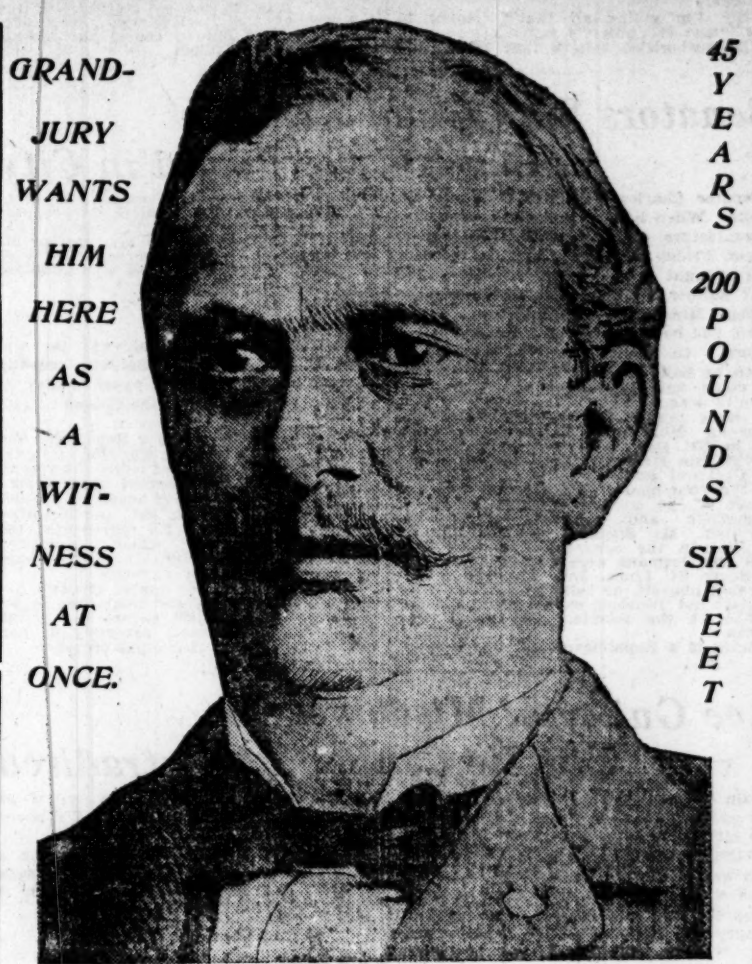

It provides for leasing not longer than 30 years to any company incorporated under the general corporation act of Illinois, but no city can do anything toward the construction of a railway without the sanction of a three-fifths vote of the electors.

Bonds can be issued, or in lieu of them certificates of indebtedness, but not unless authorized by a majority vote of the people. Fundamentally the bill is intended to permit the city of Chicago to own the present system of street railways.

PEASANT ORATOR
A SPELL-BINDER

Patrick Flynn Catches the Dublin Land League Convention.

DUBLIN, April 17.—The national convention called by the United Irish League to consider the new land bill, which assembled here yesterday, reconvened early today in the round room of the Mansion House. There was a smaller attendance.

In view of a misunderstanding in the case of certain English papers, John Redmond introduced a strong home rule resolution, declaring that the Irish nation would never be satisfied until it obtained a full measure of self-government. "No substitute," said Mr. Redmond, "can or will be accepted."

Michael Davitt briefly seconded the resolution, saying Irishmen would be neglecting their sacred duty to the cause if they did not send such a measure to their representatives.

Mr. Redmond's recommendation was carried by acclamation. The speaker then proceeded to explain the various suggested amendments to the land bill.

An amendment of Mr. O'Brien providing for extending financial assistance to evicted tenants was warmly welcomed, and many of the delegates wished it to go further.

Patrick Flynn of the Cork branch of the league, a man of great girth, with a shilling in one hand and a broad brimmed hat in the other, then mounted the platform and delivered a stirring speech.

"I did not," he said, "travel 150 miles to be laughed at." A few seconds more Flynn held the convention spellbound by the extraordinary eloquence with which he insisted that the present occupiers of holdings which formerly belonged to evicted peasants should themselves be evicted.

This peasant orator worked up a storm against "grabbers," but Mr. O'Brien's more moderate counsels prevailed.

Throughout the morning peasant speakers discussed the details of the bill with intelligent rhetoric.

Mr. O'Brien's suggestions as a rule were passed without a division.

John Redmond and Lord Dunraven had an informal meeting this morning and agreed to postpone their sitting of the landlords' conference, which will probably be held in London next week.

THE QUESTION OF DIVIDENDS

Northern Securities Company
Asks That Court's Order
Be Modified.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 17.—Circuit Judge Sanborn this afternoon set Monday morning, April 20, as the time for hearing arguments in a request by attorneys for the Northern Securities Co. that the decree recently handed down be suspended in so far as it prevented the payment by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways of dividends to the Northern Securities Co., since these dividends would ultimately reach the same people, any way.

Judge George B. Young appeared for President Hill, M. D. Grover for the Great Northern Railway and General Counsel Bunn for the Northern Pacific Railroad.

Under instruction from Attorney-General Knox, District Attorney C. C. Caudap appeared to oppose any motion for a modification of the decree.

The attorneys for the railroads explained that the regular dividend day had nearly arrived, but that under the decree it was impossible for the railroad companies to close their books and pay any dividend, a matter affecting something like 100 individuals, many of them dependent on these dividends for the necessities of life.

Judge Sanborn preferred that the whole matter be left over until all four circuit court judges could hear it, which would be on May 4, but owing to the urgency of the matter on which a suspension was desired, finally agreed to hear and decide as to the requested suspension on next Monday morning.

District Attorney Caudap said he would present the case to Attorney-General Knox in the meantime and learn his wishes.

The attorneys for the Northern Securities Co. for the two railways, said they only wished permission to pay the regular dividends, which is impossible under the understanding of the decree of the court.

Before the case can be finally passed on by the Supreme Court over $100,000 would be paid in dividends in case this part of the decree could be suspended, but otherwise the sum would be tied up and the stockholders would be properly due could not receive it.

PASSING OF THE ECONOMITES

Old Society, Only Six Members of Which Survive, Sells Its Property for $3,500,000.

PITTSBURG, April 17.—All the holdings of the Economites in the Sewickley village are said to have passed into the hands of a syndicate of Pittsburgh by a deal just consummated, the consideration being $3,500,000.

The senior trustee, John F. Doss of the Harmony Society, as the organization is called, is said to be the moving spirit in the sale, which carries with it the title of 200 acres of land.

Only about half a dozen members of the society are living, and it is assumed that the sale of the land means the practical winding up of the Economites after an existence of 100 years.

One of the principal articles of faith was the holding of the land.

Runaway Lieutenant Governor in Contempt of Kansas City Court—Offense Is Misdemeanor Not Extradictable—Can't Be Brought Back as Witness

BOODLERS QUARRELED OVER $27,000;
SENATOR STONE AGAIN BEFORE GRAND JURY

St. Louis Grand Jury Considers Evidence of Legislative Boodling With Cain Whitecotton of Steelville, Who Saw Farris Display Bill of Large Demonination, a Leading Witness.

Lieutenant-Governor John A. Lee, expecting indictment for perjury or bribery, or both, is a fugitive from justice.

St. Louis and Jefferson City authorities have information which causes them to believe that the lieutenant-governor distributed $27,000 of Baking Powder Trust boodle two years ago as representative of Kelley, the legislative agent.

It has been known for some time that boodle was distributed at the Laclede Hotel in connection with the passage of the anti-alum bill.

It is believed that he swore falsely to the Jefferson City grand jury that he knew nothing of this boodle fund.

Lee knows that this information is in the hands of Circuit Attorney Folk and there is every reason to believe that he is placing distance between himself and the St. Louis grand jury as fast as he can.

Lee was twice before the Cole County grand jury at Jefferson City. On both occasions, it is said, he swore that he knew nothing about boodle having been used in the legislature in connection with baking powder legislation.

He was recalled after his first appearance before the jury and not only repeated his denials but went more into details, it is said.

When exposure was seen to be imminent he went before the grand jury and made a confession of the $1000 check transaction.

The books of the Laclede Hotel have been taken to Jefferson City to aid in finding out who were at the meetings at the hotel, at one of which the trust money for votes is said to have been distributed by Lee.

If Lee is brought before the St. Louis grand jury it is expected that the name of every boodling snator will be wrung from him.

Unless Lee comes back and testifies it is expected that some other man will be given an opportunity to turn state's evidence.

Boodle investigation interest has now centered on Senators Farris, Morton, Smith and Sullivan.

Lieutenant-Governor Lee is supposed to have left the Chicago train which he boarded at Kansas City some place in Missouri early this morning and to have taken some other train out of the state.

He was not on the train when it crossed the Mississippi at Boodhouse, Ill.

He is in contempt of the criminal court of Kansas City for disregarding subpoena served yesterday, which was intended to hold him until a grand jury subpoena could be served.

His brother, R. E., who is in St. Louis, says he does not know where the lieutenant-governor is.

Four Missouri state senators have been indicted, it is said, for accepting bribes from Kelley, agent of the Baking Powder Trust.

Their names will be made public by the Cole County grand jury today or tomorrow, it is said.

State Senators Smith and Sullivan, who have been much embarrassed by the inquiry, have disappeared.

Story of the $27,000 Boodle
Distributed at Laclede Hotel

Lieutenant-Governor Lee's sworn statement to Attorney-General Crow, relative to the defeat of baking powder legislation at the 1901 and 1903 sessions of the general assembly, laid the basis for the present inquiry. It came voluntarily after he knew that the main facts would soon become public and would involve his own record.

Lieutenant-Governor Lee and the baking powder trust were a mutual corporation; as business and political companies they worked together.

In his confession Lee declares that he had knowledge of the boodle fund used two years ago to bring about the defeat of the bill to repeal the anti-alum law.

The boodle money was received from Daniel J. Kelley of New York, the baking powder trust representative, whom Lee charges with having attempted to buy his vote for $1000. This proposition, Lee says, he spurned, but not until he told the story of his own questionable work to Attorney-General Crow.

Lee makes out that Kelley delivered the boodle money to four senators for distribution. This quartet is indicted.

Each senator, whose influence was needed to help along the "Public Health Society" legislation, was to receive $1000.

Six senators are blamed for the failure of the criminal jurisprudence committee to make a report on the alum bill at the 1903 session, but not all are charged with having profited criminally by their action.

"The independent manufacturers don't amount to much," Lee writes said. Lee and Kelley were on cordial terms. They dined and wine and together and met members of the Senate in a social jubilee.

Before the Forty-second General Assembly convened Lee proclaimed his intention to down the lobby.

He proposed the name of Thomas L. Rubey for president pro tem of the Senate.

Senator Frank H. Farris, who sought the same honor, openly charged that Lee was playing the hypocrite, and taunted him with the remark that his threat to throttle the lobby smacked of the "alum taste." The apt phrase brought Lee to terms.

Farris withdrew in favor of Rubey, and Lee honored him with the chairmanship of the most important committee. Still Farris was not pacified.

Meanwhile another bill had been presented to the assembly by the independent baking powder manufacturers, and this, too, was assigned to the legislative graveyard.

Farris commanded the Senate forces of the Baking Powder Trust. He talked a

Lee, formerly his boon friend, did not cease, and he decided to put him on record again.

By prearrangement two members of the combine, Walker of Boone and Lee of Carter, remained outside the Senate chamber while the vote on the alum bill was taken.

The result was a tie, and Lee cast the deciding vote for the trust. Farris forcing him to declare his position.

The Post-Dispatch continued to publish information bearing upon this legislation, and shortly before the Assembly adjourned the unequal statement was printed that boodle had been used by the Baking Powder Trust.

The Cole County grand jury convened to inquire into boodle deals. Among the first witnesses was Lee. He went before the grand jury twice, but nothing important developed. Additional information was supplied by the Post-Dispatch and Lee was recalled to Jefferson City April 6.

"I have decided to tell all I know," said Gov. Lee to the attorney-general after the two had been in conference a few minutes.

"That is the best thing for you to do," remarked Crow. Lee then sat down and wrote a long statement, which is in the Post-Dispatch published exclusively Sunday, a confession of his connection with the alum baking powder scandal.

Four senators were specifically named as having received money from the boodle fund of which D. J. Kelley was custodian.

Lee collapsed while writing the confession, which the attorney-general completed.

"At midnight Lee, perspiring freely, walked out. Crow accompanied him, and the two strolled to the baseball park, a mile east of the capitol. On the return they met a former state official, and the three talked together.

"Do you think," asked Lee, solicitor-general, "that I told the jury I knew nothing about the methods used to beat the alum bill they believed it?"

"How do I know?" responded the man to whom the question was addressed.

"And why do you ask me?"

"I just wanted to know," Lee stammered.

"When Gov. Lee went before the Cole County jury again Wednesday night, it is supposed that he certified to the jury that he knew nothing about the alum bill."

"Now," said Mr. Crow as he went out, "you are expected in St. Louis tomorrow. You will take the first train there."

promised Lee, "I am willing to fore the St. Louis grand jury, as is necessary now."

showing the attorney-general's board as a story.

STONE BEFORE GRANDJURY

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 17.—Clad in a neat cutaway and loose fitting trousers, and assuming an air of deep gravity, Senator William J. Stone strolled into the courthouse, at 10 o'clock this morning.

Four minutes later he was a witness before the Cole County grand jury to tell what he knew of the Missouri Public Health Society and its parent, the cream of tartar Baking Powder Trust.

For one hour and forty minutes Missouri's junior United States senator was before the jury.

When Stone emerged he did not appear so calm as usual. He bit nervously at the stump of a cigar, which stuck awkwardly in the side of his mouth. His bow tie was disarranged and his hair rather disheveled.

He rolled his eyes heavenward and clasped his hands when a reporter asked him how he stood the ordeal.

"I told the jury all that I know, he said. "I would be glad if I could tell them more."

While the senator talked plausibly about the ordeal, it was evident from the twitching of his face that he had not enjoyed such smooth sailing. Someone suggested that he would hardly be willing to pay for a complete transcript of his testimony before the Cole County grand jury, provided all of it were to be given to the public.

Gov. Lee's confession contains the assertion that Senator Stone accepted a large fee for fathering the legislative interests of the Baking Powder Trust and consenting to the use of his name as the head of the Public Health Society, which never existed.

It is said that Stone got $5000 as a retainer fee, but that the aggregate sum he received from the trust reached $25,000.

F. W. Webb, president of the Bank of Steelville, whose Senator Farris kept his deposit, was among those who testified this morning. Senator Farris left here for St. Louis on an early morning train. He will not be compelled to testify before the Cole County grand jury. The legal point was raised that anyone under investigation cannot be forced to give testimony.

A subpoena was issued, for Farris, but this is as far as Attorney-General Crow will go.

Quarrel Over Boodle Allotment

Preceded Disbursement at Hotel

Between March 10 and March 20 there was a conference at the Laclede Hotel, at which was distributed the money to defeat the alum bill. It is generally understood that three or four senators who were supplied from the coffers of D. J. Kelley, acted as the disbursing agents. Those present included six members of the criminal jurisprudence committee and others belonging to the Farris-Morton combination.

It appears that before the distribution took place there was a quarrel between an officer of the state, whose name has since been linked with that of Kelley, and a Baking Powder Trust man who really paid. "I only received $10,000," this officer is reported to have declared.

"You are holding out on us," insisted the senator.

"No, I'm giving all that's coming to you," was the officer's rejoinder.

The authorities believe that $25,000 was the total amount disbursed. At the recent session the boodle fund is fixed at $25,000. Of this amount some senators only received $1000. Others were paid $1000, while still a third contingent held out for $1500.

Attorney C. D. Gorm of Booneville, representing Atlas Crow, who came to St. Louis with a subpoena duces tecum for the registers of the Laclede Hotel for March and April, 1903, departed for Jefferson City Friday morning, with the registers in his possession. Henry Vertz, night clerk of the hotel, accompanied Mr. Gorm.

The books are wanted by the Cole County grand jury, and Vertz will be a witness to identify entries therein.

Attorney-General Crow wishes to show the grand jury the frequency with which the senators combine of two years ago met at the Laclede.

An effort will be made to show that "boodle" was divided by members of the combine at the Laclede two years ago, after the first bill to repeal the baking powder law was killed.

Senators Smith and Sullivan Can Not Be Found in City

Senator Charles A. Smith is not in St. Louis. When he left the city is a matter of conjecture. At his residence, 329 Arsenal street, Friday morning, a ring at the door brought a man servant, who stated that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Smith was at home. Mrs. Smith, he said, was downtown, and he did not know when she would return.

In response to a question as to when he had last seen Mr. Smith he said he could not remember.

Smith was elected to the Senate in 1900. He is a lawyer and a member of the firm of McManus, McNamee & Smith, 412 Chestnut street, opposite the entrance to the courthouse.

His election was the result of the contention between Mayor Zelgenheim and Health Commissioner Starkloff was fighting the contention that the Germans were getting everything in South St. Louis, and while he was a German himself, he believed someone with a name not Teutonic should get the nomination to the Senate. The result was Smith is a Republican, and was a member of the House of Representatives in the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth General Assemblies. He was born in Illinois, and came to St. Louis in 1890. He received his law education in the law department of Washington University, and was admitted to the bar in 1892.

Is Missing.

Senator William P. Sullivan is also among the missing. Mr. Sullivan recently changed a $1000 bill for paper money of smaller denomination at the Colonial Trust Co. in St. Louis.

Senator Sullivan is also a Republican and a lawyer, and hails from Christian County. He bore the distinction of being the youngest member of the Missouri State Senate in the Forty-first general assembly. In 1878 he moved to Springfield, Mo., and to Christian County in 1883. He represented the Nineteenth district, which comprised Wright, Stone, Webster, Christian, Douglas, Osark and Taney counties.

Senator Sullivan was one of the two Republican members of the committee to revise the statutes in 1899. Before his election to the Forty-first general assembly he had held several minor municipal offices.

Lee Guilty of Misdemeanor, But He Cannot Be Extradited

Cain Whitecotton of Steelville, who is thought to have seen Frank Farris flash a $500 bill in his home town, and Samuel P. O'Fallon, representative from Holt County, who was offered $100 to draw up and introduce a bill, making him a witness, when the St. Louis grand jury resumed its inquiry into alum legislation Friday morning. Former Senator Orchard reappeared as a witness.

The two star witnesses, however, were not present. Frank Farris was reported to be in St. Louis, and Mr. Folk had no word of his exact whereabouts.

Lieutenant-Governor Lee continues to be mysteriously absent.

The only official information concerning his movements received by the circuit attorney was contained in the following dispatch from prosecuting Attorney Roland Hughes at Kansas City, Thursday night.

"Lee left here on eastbound C. & A. train this evening. His wife left for the Missouri Pacific for St. Louis. Lee said he was going to St. Louis."

At 3 o'clock Friday morning Mr. Folk was aroused from his slumbers to receive a telephone message. Instead of bringing information as to Lee's whereabouts and plans, it brought word that all trace of Lee had been lost within 100 miles of Kansas City, and that persons who searched the train at various county seats more distant from Kansas City did not find the elusive lieutenant-governor on the train.

The train on which Lee traveled was bound for Chicago. He could have changed cars at Roodhouse, Ill., however, and arrived in St. Louis Friday morning. He could also have left the train at Central, Mexico, Louisville or several other points, and switched to other roads that would carry him out of the state or bring him to St. Louis.

Folk Thinks Lee Far Away.

"I have no reason to think it likely that Lee has returned to St. Louis," said Mr. Folk Friday morning. "He certainly knows he is wanted here, and he has certainly shown no disposition to come here."

Mr. Folk does not hesitate to express his disappointment over Lee's escape from Jefferson City without being served. Mr. Folk sent a subpoena to Sheriff Smith and had given a blank subpoena to Attorney-General Crow.

When Crow called him up on the long distance telephone Thursday night the circuit attorney asked him why he did not fill out the blank subpoena and serve it on the lieutenant-governor.

"Gen. Crow said that he had a talk with Lee, that he understood fully that he was wanted in St. Louis and promised positively to go there," said Mr. Folk. "He promised so positively, Gen. Crow said, that he did not think it necessary to serve him. Gen. Crow expressed surprise that he did not keep his promise."

The volume of business placed with the Chicago office alone is nearly equal to the entire business of other advertising agencies in the West, while the main offices of the Thompson Agency are in New York City, where the major portion of its contracts are handled.

His bullets went astray with the exception of the one that struck O'Donnell on the shoulder. The three men were arrested, but O'Donnell and Clemens were released at once.

THREE MEN HANGED IN MISSOURI

Dr. James L. Gartrell, Charles May and John "Bud" Taylor Executed for the Crime of Murder.

AT KANSAS CITY, BUTLER AND ST. JOE

Dr. Gartrell Was Nearly 70 Years Old—May's Life Had a Romantic Chapter—Taylor Killed His Sweetheart

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUTLER, Mo., April 17.—Dr. James L. Gartrell was hanged today for the murder of D. B. Donegan in March, 1901, in Bates County.

Dr. Gartrell was nearly 70 years old. He was six feet tall, very erect, wore a long flowing white beard and looked like a patriarch.

During the winter of 1900 Gartrell lived in Kansas City. About March 1 he met D. B. Donegan, a gold miner, who had just returned from Colorado.

Donegan wanted to go to Oklahoma and had purchased a wagon and team and expected to leave Kansas City March 20. He was alone and asked the Gartrells to go with him. This they consented to do and the party left Kansas City for Oklahoma, as previously arranged. The weather became cold, and, according to Gartrell's story, he and Donegan had frequent quarrels. On March 19, they stopped at a log cabin on Mulberry creek, in the western part of Bates County, and about 10 miles south of Kansas City. The night was cold and they built a fire in the middle of the cabin. Donegan made his bed on the north side of the cabin, where the wall was solid.

The next morning when William Gartrell awoke he was horrified to find that Donegan had been murdered. The miner's head had been split with an ax.

Gartrell wrapped Donegan's body in a sack, put it in the wagon and went south toward the creek. When they reached the creek they took Donegan's body out of the wagon, went up the stream a short distance and threw the body into the water. Then the Gartrells drove south a few miles to Myhart, a small station on the St. Louis & Emporia road, where they met C. L. Baker and asked him if he knew of any one they could leave their team with.

Mr. Baker consented to keep the team. Dr. Gartrell told Baker that he would send a man by the name of McCone after it.

Dr. Gartrell and his son took the train for Kansas City. When he returned to Kansas City he sold the team to A. H. Kirby, who sent a man named Edwards after the team.

April is the body of Donegan was discovered on the bank of the creek, having been washed out by the high water.

An investigation immediately followed. Several citizens saw Dr. Gartrell and Donegan together in the covered wagon, the fact that the wagon and team were left at Myhart led the authorities to suspect the Gartrells. They were located in Kansas City and arrested on April 25.

Before leaving Kansas City Dr. Gartrell made a confession. He said he killed Donegan in self-defense; that Donegan had a wrench and hit him on the head, whereupon he struck Donegan with an ax and killed him.

Donegan had $20 on his person when killed.

William Gartrell was not prosecuted. Dr. Gartrell was tried at the November term of the Bates County Circuit Court. The trial lasted four days.

The jury found him to be hanged Feb. 19, 1902. His case was appealed to the Supreme Court. The sentence was sustained and his execution set for March 6, 1903. A temporary respite was granted and the execution postponed until April 17.

CHARLES MAY'S LIFE ENDED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 17.—For the killing of Robert Martin, in this county, in December, 1900, Charles May was hanged today.

May had quite a history. A few years ago, with his uncle, James May, he was indicted for the murder of William Gillette in this city. The men went to trial. Charles May was convicted of murder in the first degree and was sentenced to be hanged. His uncle was sent to the penitentiary, and is still there.

The death sentence was pronounced upon Charles May, and he was taken to his cell to await execution. The days dragged slowly. Friends came to his aid, and a new trial was secured. He received a short term in the penitentiary, which he served. It is said that the case against him was weak at the first trial, despite his conviction.

In Topeka lives Emily Becker, a young woman of considerable beauty and intelligence. She and May were schoolmates years ago. May was a young and handsome, but impetuous, and inclined to quarrel upon occasion. He drifted away from Topeka and from his boyhood sweetheart.

Three years ago he attended a dance in St. Joseph. There several men being engaged. May drew his revolver. Robert Martin was shot and killed, and May was arrested for the homicide.

His trial was held, and again he was pronounced guilty of murder in the first degree, though his friends again insisted that there were extenuating circumstances.

Once more May was placed in the death cell, and this time his courage forsook him. He felt that, having escaped from the execution of one death sentence, his case was pronounced beyond reasonable hope.

Dejected and forlorn, apparently deserted by those who hitherto had shown a friendly feeling toward him, May lapsed into melancholy and waited for the ignominious end. But there was one friend in whose fidelity he had not entertained sufficient faith. That was Emily Becker. She came from Kansas and declared her determination to work in his behalf without ceasing.

Miss Becker came here and sought to influence the authorities in May's behalf. She also went to Jefferson City and called on the governor. But her efforts availed nothing.

May became a member of the Catholic church a few weeks ago. Pupils of the Madonna of the Sacred Heart School of the cathedral parish became much interested in his fate and on Easter Sunday all prayed for the repose of his soul.

BUD TAYLOR DIES ON GALLOWAYS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 17.—John or "Bud" Taylor was hanged at the county jail this morning for the murder on March 2, 1901, of Ruth Nollard, his former sweetheart. Taylor was baptized into the Catholic Church last night. He talked calmly of the approaching end, kept cool and walked to the scaffold bravely. Taylor expressed sorrow for his crime, but added: "I loved her, and I wasn't willing to live without her."

Taylor's crime was prompted by jealousy, because Miss Nollard, a working girl of 19, had liked him. He planned the murder most deliberately. He lay in wait for his victim for several days, and fired the fatal shot at her with a rifle from a second-story window in West Ninth street as she passed by on the opposite side with her sister.

The officers had difficulty in preventing a crowd that gathered from watching Taylor. His lawyers tried to save him on the plea of insanity and epilepsy, and several appeals for clemency had been made to Gov. Dockery. Taylor was formerly a baseball player, having gained some prominence in minor leagues. He was 30 years old.

Just before his execution Taylor talked about different religious sects and creeds. He quoted the Bible freely. He showed that he was familiar with many religions. He talked of Shintoism, Buddhism, Brahmanism, Mohammedanism and other Oriental religions; of the Hindus, women who thought she was doing God's will when she threw her body into the Ganges, who have been crushed beneath the wheels of the juggernaut. Then he said that he had been puzzled in his boyhood about different religious sects of Christianity going against each other about Joshua commanding the sun to stand still. He quoted to the clergyman a text from the Bible in which it was said that Christians might be bitten by serpents and might swallow poison and yet be not harmed.

"New, you take a dose of prussic acid and see if it won't shake your faith in your orthodoxy," he said to the clergyman.

For a half hour he talked, calmly, intelligently, in a low voice, quoting from religious works, and all the time smoking his cigarette. At the end he said:

"I am going to die as I have lived. I shall not ask God to forgive me, because I have done nothing for which I need forgiveness."

"I'll tell you," he said, "I never loved but two people in all my life. One was my mother. One was Ruth Nollard. I loved that girl better than I did my life. That's the strangest thing I ever did. Every day I sacrificed everything, even their life, for love of a woman. That's what I did. I just knew that I had to kill her and I did. It wasn't wrong for me to kill her, because I couldn't help it. I knew, of course, that I would lose my life, but what did I care about law when I loved her better than I would my own life?"

Taylor said he had written a book, which was in the hands of the brother, Charles Taylor, and to be published after his death.

"In that book," he said, "I have told in full the story of my life and the killing and also my religious views. It is written intelligently, and will interest the public, I believe."

CIRCUS MEN WEAR PLAIN CLOTHES

Only Music Enlivens First Practice Performance of New Season.

HORSE GOES 'ROUND RING AT THE SAME OLD PACE

Individual Practice All Winter Has Made It Easy for Performers to Show Good Form on First Day.

When the band strikes up for the grand entry at the Adam Forepaugh-Seils Bros. circus at Laclede and Vandeventer avenues next Monday, the audience will see as finished a performance as will be given in the middle of the season, with the additional advantage that every accessory will be shining new, from the big tent down to the least of the spangled costumes. The details making for a spectacle of such immense proportions as a modern American circus are so many that from year to year the discipline never lags. When the show goes into winter quarters at the end of one season, preparations for the next season begin. Before the assembling of the show in the spring "green" performers and "green" horses must be retrained, and for a week before the doors open on the show not a minute is lost in perfecting the ensemble. Performers who were signed in the fall have been practicing their acts in gymnasia or in private rings through the winter, and on the day the big top goes up on the show lot the first general rehearsal is called by the manager. The season's program has been made up by the directors of the equestrian, acrobatic, comedy and other departments, and copies have been made on large pieces of brown paper. These are fastened to the canvas walls behind the scenes, in the open place behind the curtain, where the ring horses and the performers wait to be called into the arena, and in all the dressing rooms. Every performer familiarizes himself with it, so that he will not delay his entrance for the space of a second.

Everyday Garb Worn by All.

Thursday afternoon a complete performance was given in the presence of the two Seils brothers and a half dozen invited guests.

At a signal from Mr. Seils the band began the circus quickstep that the American people know by heart as being the key to the grand entry. Into the arena came the cavalcade, with the equestrian director at its head. No sponges, no armor, no bit of color. The ladies wore shirt waists, the cavaliers derby hats, the charioteers were in shirt sleeves. The clowns were in overalls and without paint.

Even the elephants were without trapping and appeared only in their unadorned and uncomely hides and "round and round" they went under the practiced eye of the "old man" who kept them at it until he was satisfied that it would go smoothly enough, then he dismissed the address pageant with a wave of the hand.

The band stopped to wipe away the perspiration and the leading lit a cigarette to prepare himself for the next stage. It is hard work to blow a quickstep on a brass instrument for a full half hour. Now the rings and the platform filled with successive turns on the program. A woman in a suit of baggy trousers and a man in a pair of dirty pink tights, a purple and yellow striped sweater and a dirty hat enter the ring. The next act "robinbacks" are turned loose. The "robinbacks" begin to pad around the ring in the old familiar way. The woman makes a little run and leaps upon the back of one of the men, takes the other. They are the celebrated burlesque riders who fascinate you with their grace and dazzle you with their tights and gauze and spangles when you see them some night next week. They go about their business in a very matter-of-fact way. There is no posing, no blowing of kisses—just straight business.

In another ring four menage horses are doing a cake walk. One of them, fresh from a winter of idleness, is so full of spirits that half of the ring is thrown into the cake walk, and the equestrian director is compelled to sober him up with his long black whip. On the platform a young man in tweeds is doing a series of stunts on a bicycle, and nearby a group of acrobats in colorful clothes, are going through their aerial tumbling. Out in the arena a score of clowns are chasing one another around the ring, clad in every day garb. And so it goes through a hundred turns. The whole thing is so bizarre, so like and yet so unlike the circus, that the outsider watches it as if it were all a dream. But to the circus folk it is the real work, and absolutely necessary to the perfection of the regular performance when the show opens for the season.

WOULD NOT BE FRIDAY BRIDE

But Waiting Until Saturday Was Not to Be Thought of, so a Minister Was Found.

Miss Carrie Hallam, daughter of Mr. and James Hallam of Crawfordville, Ind., and Wilmer M. Lynch of 719 Carpenter place, came to St. Louis to escape a Friday wedding, but they managed to do so by a few moments. The bride-to-be had objected to being married on Friday and the young couple did not want to wait until Saturday, so they persuaded Patrick McDermott to lease them a marriage license after 10 o'clock Thursday night. They began a search for some one to say the ceremony. The justices were not available and it was only by a hurried visit to the residence of Rev. J. C. Cunningham just before midnight that they succeeded in getting the ceremony performed in time.

The game will be played in Louis-iana Hall. Both teams are training hard. They met earlier in the season for the championship, which was won by the "Firsts" after a closely-played contest.

AUDIPHONE, INAUGURAL WINNER, HAS CHANCE TO REPEAT TODAY

Field Opposed to Him in Kinloch Feature, Friday, Lacks High Class—Hurdle Race Handicap a Hard Event to Call—Track Will Be Fair.

BY R. D. WALSH.

KINLOCH RACE TRACK, April 17.
This afternoon's racing program for Kinloch is featureless, unless the hurdle handicap at a mile and three-sixteenths may be so considered. There is a moderate field of seven engaged in this jumping race, but on this year's form tacticians and Sir V. de Vere have little chance of winning.

Of all entries in this hurdle race Buck O'Dowd and Torreon have had the most experience, but it does not seem to have improved O'Dowd any. He is a most unreliable brute. At that he may win today, though I do not fancy him. Torreon is better at steeplechasing than at hurdling and as far as speed is concerned is a back number.

The Bratton entry—Judge Pettus and Mrs. Grannon—have done a little at the jumping game, but are of small account. The latter will probably be Mr. Bratton's choice in the race, as just now she seems to have more speed than her stable companion. She is average to a distance, however, and that is a serious objection to success.

On June 24 last at the Fair Grounds Sherwood won a steeplechase at a mile and a half, carrying 120 pounds. In this race he defeated a fair field of "leppers" much better than those opposed to him today and if his condition is reasonably good he should be able to annex the purse in the last race today.

Fifth Race

Today's Feature.
The most interesting race of the day will probably be the fifth, a dash of one mile, and the event is confined to four, of which the inaugural winner, Audiphone, is one. Considering the good field he defeated on the opening day and the mastery manner in which he did it, Audiphone should have an easy victory in this race. Nearest should beat Glendon for the place, although I saw the latter win a fair race at Memphis about a week ago.

With about 90 or 92 pounds in the saddle, Nearest would make it not even for Audiphone here, but the distance and

There are more ways of killing a horse's chances in a race than by deliberately pulling him.

Chorus Boy's
Weird Race.
What easier and safer way can it be done than by letting the animal run himself to death in the early stages of the contest? This remark has special reference to Chorus Boy's weird performance yesterday. His rider must have made a mistake and thought it was a five-furlong sprint instead of a mile and a sixteenth.

At the drop of the flag he went out and set such a killing pace that at the half mile he was a dozen lengths in front of the next horse. As was to be expected, he had shot his bolt at this point, and finished a dismal last.

FIREMAN WINNER
IN EXPANDING DUEL

Distance Lengthened From Five Feet to Half Block
After First Shot.

ANTAGONIST GIVEN TIME
ONLY FOR A PANTOMIME

Failure to Get Divorce Caused Charles
Piger to Renew Old Quarrel
by Visit to City Engine House.

A duel, in which one of the dualists, Charles Piger, was so badly frightened that he forgot his weapon, took place in engine house No. 24, 1214 Spruce street, Thursday. Fireman Frank O'Donnell was the other principal in the encounter.

The distance was five feet when the first shot was fired and half a block when the duel ended. Piger was shot twice, in the shoulder and in the side, but not dangerously wounded.

The affair was arranged by a 15-year-old boy, Jack Hardin, stepson of Piger. But for the youth's timely warning Piger might have carried out his alleged threat to shoot O'Donnell.

Piger was angry because of his failure to get a divorce Thursday, but the cause of the enmity between him and O'Donnell dates back two years.

Both men are separated from their wives. Piger and Mrs. O'Donnell are well acquainted.

O'Donnell had two escapes Thursday, and in the evening warned Piger that he would kill him if he did not keep away.

As the fireman was going from engine house No. 24 to his boarding house, a few blocks away, Piger appeared from a side street and fired a shot.

Piger then went from there to the home of his wife, Mrs. Sallie Piger, 3028 Pine street. They talked about Piger's suit for a divorce, in which he failed to get a decree Thursday, his allegation that Mrs. Piger threw a cuspidor at him being deemed insufficient.

"If I'd found that fellow O'Donnell today there would have been a fireman's funeral," Piger told his wife.

Piger's stepson, in order to get him away from the house, led the way to engine house No. 24, but ran ahead and warned Fireman Mooney that Piger was coming to kill O'Donnell. Mooney told O'Donnell, and just as Piger walked into the engine house O'Donnell halted him.

Piger made a threatening gesture, and O'Donnell began firing. After the first shot Piger ran. Five shots were fired by O'Donnell. The sound of the revolver brought all the firemen in the house, and several volunteered to pursue Piger, but O'Donnell told them not to interfere.

Piger, Clemens, his companion, and O'Donnell, were arrested. O'Donnell and Clemens were discharged. A warrant was obtained Friday, however, for Clemens. Piger will be charged with assault to kill.

Piger gave his address as 1712 1/2 Sarah street. He was married six years ago in Louisville, but for two years has been paying Mrs. Piger $4 a week alimony.

MORGAN CELEBRATES SIXTY-SIXTH
BIRTHDAY IN MAKING MORE MONEY

Man, on Whose Word Billions of Dollars Wait, Has Achieved
All His Great Successes Since He Reached Sixty—What if He'd Been Shot at 45?

LEADING FEATURES IN LIFE OF
J. PIERPONT MORGAN, 66 TODAY

Born at Hartford, Conn., April 17, 1837.
Educated at the English High School of Boston and University of Goettingen, Germany, graduating in 1857.

Began work in New York bank in 1857.
Engaged in business in for himself in 1860.
Formed banking house of Dabney, Morgan & Co. in 1860.

Formed partnership with Anthony J. Drexel of Philadelphia under the firm name of Drexel, Morgan & Co., 1871.
Became senior partner by the death of Mr. Drexel in 1893, the firm becoming J. P. Morgan & Co. on Jan. 1, 1895.

Head of banking houses in Philadelphia, London and Paris from 1871 to present time.
Personal assets estimated at between $70,000,000 and $100,000,000.

His money power represents over $1,000,000,000.
Director in 32 corporations.
Member of thirteen social clubs in New York.

NEW YORK, April 17.—This is J. Pierpont Morgan's sixty-sixth birthday. He was born on April 17, 1837, and, according to horoscope made by an eminent astrologer, as recently as 1902, "was born under a lucky star," a circumstance which for a long time had suggested itself to others than those who write horoscopes.

Mr. Morgan, as is his wont, celebrated his birthday quietly. He does not like dinner parties, or the presentation of loving cups, so was down to his office this morning at the usual hour and put in a busy day, regardless of the fact that it is his birthday.

It is a curious fact, and one but little realized that the great successes of Mr. Morgan's career have been achieved since his sixtieth birthday—within the last six years.

What if he had been shot at 45? He first became prominent 30 years ago when he went to Europe and successfully disposed of $5,000,000 worth of New York Central stock, incidentally, cleared $1,000,000 for himself.

His second great venture was leading the West Shore Railroad to the New York Central for 99 years. William H. Vanderbilt was so pleased with this coup that he made Mr. Morgan a present that cost $80,000.

The next really big thing done was his famous gold-bond deal under the Cleveland administration. Then came the reorganization of the U. S. & O. Road, for which he got $2,000,000.

Next he sold the Pennsylvania Coal Co. to the Erie Railroad at a profit of $3,000,000. For selling the Jersey Central to the Reading he won a fee of $2,000,000.

For financing the steel trust his personal fee was $12,500,000.
Other deals, in which his fees and investment profits were enormous, are too numerous to mention.

PROVIDENTIAL MAN"

LONDON, April 17.—To us in England Pierpont Morgan is a providential man, raised up to achieve in the world of commerce and finance what cannot yet be attempted in the political sphere.

He is knitting nations together; he is weaving into the web of the many colored strands of diverse nationalities; in the roaring loom of life he uses Atlantic liners as shuttles and railways as threads. He is one of the master spirits of the twentieth century.

In England there are some to whom he is a veritable bogey man, but in Ireland he is regarded in quite another light. His influence and the inspiration of his example spur the Belfast shipbuilder, Pirrie, into vigorous initiative for the improvement of Irish industries.

The Irish hope much from the new land bill, but if they heard Morgan was about to buy up all their ramshackle railways it would do more than anything Wyndham can effect to give fresh heart to hope to the inhabitants of the "distressful" Isle.

What Ireland needs is the realization of Cardinal Newman's dream.
"Ireland will become the road of union and passage between the two hemispheres and the center of the world, to see its inhabitants rival Belgium in population, France in vigor, Spain in enthusiasm."

Bourke Cockran, when visiting Ireland this spring, saw the same vision and predicted for Ireland leadership in the markets of the world. Chief Secretary Wyndham shares Mr. Cockran's faith in Cardinal Newman's vision.

Last recess he spent many days inspecting the bays on the west coast, where Pierpont Morgan's 40,000-ton monsters of the future will start for the new world. It is only in Ireland that these gigantic ferry boats of years to come can find commodious anchorage.

All this, which is visible to the chief secretary and to the Nationalist leaders, cannot be hidden from the present eyes of Morgan. It is not wonderful, therefore, that as a birthday wish many on this side of the Atlantic are saying:

"May Mr. Morgan crown his career by consolidating the Irish railways, tunneling the Irish channels and making the bay in the west coast of Ireland the Liverpool and Carthage of the twentieth century."

MADE SCENE AT FOUR COURTS

Mrs. Barbara Clifford Led From Prosecuting Attorney's Office by Policeman.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Dalton was compelled on the afternoon of Thursday morning to prevent a sensational scene in his office between Mrs. Barbara Clifford, 210 St. Vincent avenue, and a number of her neighbors, who were there to get a warrant charging Mrs. Clifford with eluding the police.

They were in the private office when Mrs. Clifford arrived. She overheard some of the conversation and immediately set up a clamor demanding admission. Dalton summoned a policeman and had her led away. A warrant was issued against Mrs. Clifford charging her with disturbing the peace.

Afterward Mrs. Clifford was given a hearing. She accused her neighbors of persecuting her and her daughter.

When Mrs. J. H. Dougherty of 1310 Belt avenue saw a man she thought to be a thief enter the cellar of her home, 1310 Belt avenue, she took her revolver and captured him as he came out of the door.

Mrs. Dougherty lives in the lower flat, and with many of her neighbors has been greatly annoyed for several weeks by petty thefts.

She and other women of the neighborhood resolved to catch the thief. Mrs. Dougherty prepared by securing a revolver and keeping it handy.

Thursday morning, while looking through the curtains of the front window she saw a man tiptoe into the yard. She watched him from a side window and saw him go into the cellar.

Grasping her revolver, Mrs. Dougherty went to the side cellar entrance, and when the man came out, she commanded "hands up" and "up they went," says Mrs. Dougherty.

After ordering the man to back up against the wall of the house, and to keep his hands high, Mrs. Dougherty called for help, and G. W. Warner, an elderly man who lives in the upper flat, came to her aid.

Mrs. Dougherty managed to control the man she had captured, and she asked Mr. Warner to get a policeman. It was 15 minutes before the patrolman arrived.

The man gave his name as Selgie, and his business as peddling. Mrs. Dougherty will prosecute him on a charge of trespass.

FELL ON A "GOOSENECK."

Leo Dennis May Die as a Result of a Peculiar Accident.

Leo Dennis, 20 years old, a teamster in the employ of the Bray Construction Co. at the World's Fair Grounds, may die, as the result of a peculiar accident late Thursday afternoon.

Dennis was driving a team attached to a scraper filled with dirt. As he was crossing the railroad, back of the Liberal Arts building, the scraper caught in the track.

The jar threw Dennis into the air and he fell on the "goose-neck," which holds the scraper in place, and it penetrated his body.

At the Emergency Hospital, Dr. Moore pronounced him seriously and he was taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

Dennis' mother, Mrs. Jennie Gillette, resides at Jones, O. T.

His second great venture was leading the West Shore Railroad to the New York Central for 99 years. William H. Vanderbilt was so pleased with this coup that he made Mr. Morgan a present that cost $80,000.

CHICAGO SYNDICATE TO RID BAY OF HAVANA OF SHARKS

Promoter Expects to Make Fortune, at Rate of $3 For Females and $2 For Males, Baiting With Dogs and Slaying With Explosives.

HAVANA, April 17.—A Chicago financier who spent eight weeks in Cuba investigating the island's opportunities is the promoter of a scheme for killing sharks in Havana waters that would yield immense financial returns to its backers.

An ordinance recently passed by the municipal council provides for the payment of a bounty of $3 for each female shark killed and of $2 for every male.

The Chicago man was here when the ordinance was passed and he at once interested friends in Chicago and here in his plans and a syndicate was formed. A large quantity of a high explosive was ordered shipped to Havana at once. At the same time 50 men were put to work capturing and corralling all the stray dogs to be found in the city and country adjacent, which were to be used as bait to draw the sharks into the harbor.

The syndicate proposed first to feed a few dogs to the sharks and after a few days of this sort of baiting, the animals are to be sent adrift with an explosive cartridge tied to each of them. The supply of dogs in Cuba and the supply of sharks in the ocean being practically inexhaustible, the pecuniary outlook for the syndicate is considered promising.

Mathias Humelson Was Neatly Picked Up on
S. Seventh Street.

A fender that fended was the means of the preservation of Mathias Humelson, 8 years old, from being ground to death beneath a Seventh street transit car at Seventh and Wyoming streets Thursday night.

The boy lives with his parents at 241 South Seventh street. The car which bore down upon him was in charge of Conductor Charles Holt of 2106 Gage street and Motorman Albert Perin of 3801 South Jefferson avenue.

A half dozen boys, Humelson among the number, were playing in the street. They ran to and fro in the seat of the game, dodging vehicles and streetcars.

The car was running at full speed. Humelson, pursued by another boy, ran in front of it. Perin let down the fender. It picked the boy up. The car ran half a block before it was brought to a standstill.

The law, in a semi-conscious condition, was carried to his home. Dr. William J. Pohrer of 2338 California avenue found that the only injury was a slight contusion on the back of his head. An hour later he had completely recovered.

FITZSIMMONS'

an Attack of Typhoid-Pneumonia.

CHAMPION OWED EVERYTHING TO HER INFLUENCE OVER HIM

It Was Her Knowledge of Ring Generalship That Enabled Him to Wrest the Title From James J. Corbett.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons, wife of the former heavyweight pugilist, died at her home in Brooklyn today.

She began sinking last night and Fitzsimmons summoned a number of physicians, but they were unable to save her.

She had typhoid pneumonia and was convalescent until the relapse came last night. She was Rose Julian before her marriage. Her brother is Martin Julian, who, for a long time, was Fitzsimmons' manager.

The Julians were once a noted acrobatic team. Mrs. Fitzsimmons was the making of her husband. She cultivated temperate habits in him, making him a marvel of strength, agility and skill at 40 years of age.

She took a personal interest in all his pugilistic contests and encouraged him by her faith.

She was at the ringside at Carson City, Nev., when he wrestled the championship from Corbett and coached him as to his manner of fighting.

It was she who told him to quit hitting at Corbett's head and fight for his stomach. This change of tactics won the battle for him.

The domestic affairs of the Fitzsimmons were, as a rule, pleasant. Two children were born of the union.

Two years ago Mrs. Fitzsimmons appeared in St. Louis with her husband in a play.

One feature of Chicago's new women's paper will be a "Man Lovely" column.

Would not a "Man Awful Nice" column be more likely to catch the eye of the female readers?

WOMEN EDIT A NEWSPAPER Windy City Ladies in Journalistic Stunts.

The following from the Post-Dispatch staff correspondent on the spot explains itself: "The Chicago Lady" has created quite a stir. Dating from the Windy City, it is breezy in every column. No man can afford to miss reading its pointed remarks and sage advice.

CHICAGO, April 14.—Your correspondent has been permitted to examine some of the proof sheets of matter that is to appear in the initial number of the new Chicago daily to be edited, published and owned by ladies.

Following is the title: THE CHICAGO LADY. CHICAGO, ILL., APRIL 15, 1903. Edited by Women. Vol. 1. Motto: Keep Your Hat on Straight No. 1. The paper devotes a large part of its space to man.

As his principal business is to make himself attractive to members of the opposite sex, he will be given a special department in the new paper under the heading, "The Man Beautiful."

Under the sub-caption of "Care of the Hair," these hints appear:

"A close shave is now considered de rigueur in Chicago. The fashion of being fuzzy is rapidly going out among our best people."

"A man's beard should be cut decollete, with a goatee in the center and bias effect in the back."

"Mustaches are no longer worn with coffee grounds as formerly. Chicagoans are marching on."

"The use of bear's grease is being discouraged by the debutantes of this season."

"Christopher Columbus hair cuts, that suggest the use of a two-point bowl as a guide to the shears, are falling off in popularity."

"It has been ascertained that the average length of the whiskers in the system of every man of 21 is 60 feet. These figures are based on the calculation that between the ages of 20 and 30 whiskers grow at the rate of an inch a month and a foot a year. With the wind about the Masonic Temple building what it is, what a blessing the barber becomes in the light of whisker statistics."

Health Hints.

"Health Hints" is a sub-heading under the "Man Beautiful." In answer to John Henry, the editor says: "For the man who has acquired more embonpoint at Rector's than is fashionable on La Salle street, we recommend a system of progressive lacing and a diet made up of exclusively Chicago cooking school products."

"About native Chicago men have fallen off considerably on this kind of cooking alone, but there is greater surety in progressive lacing. In combination with this diet, where men have been inured to the kind of cooking they have in New York."

"Yale" is told that sanitary pillows may be made by collecting men out of the love-locks of their girl captives.

The hygienic value of colored neckties, such as are usually selected by wives as Christmas presents for their husbands, is not understood by the usual man. The effect of color on the eye is a scientific fact well known to psychologists. Men who wear neckties made from their wives discarded silk dresses occupy an unique sociological position. This style of necktie is in keeping with the thrift that characterizes modern society. Since it came into favor here several packers have begun wearing collars on week days and have abandoned plain red ties on Sunday for ties of drab or saffron hue.

"The Lady" Answers.

In answer to a communication from St. Louis, the editor writes: "It is now fashionable for the husband to let the wife apply for the divorce here. The unmanly spectacle of several hundred husbands rushing into the divorce court every day is no longer seen."

"Business Man" is advised not to work more than two hours without closing the eyes and resting them for five minutes.

"Jackson Boulevard" writes: "I have just received the bill for the Christmas cigars my wife gave me. What would you do about it?" The editor answers: "Pay it."

"St. Louis" writes: "I never wear a coat more than a week at a time, and yet I find my neck becoming dark in hue. What ought I to do?"

The editor suggests the use of at least six collars a week (there is no laundry trust in Chicago), and washing in water in which is lemon juice and almond meal.

"How can I cure myself of insomnia?" writes a New York man. "Move to Chicago," the editor answers.

"What is the best time to set a hen?" asks Agriculturist. "When the hen wants to set," the editor replies.

"What will prevent outfit flannel from shrinking?" writes Charlie boy. "Do not wash it," answered the editor with one hand tied behind her.

"How can I get past an ice cream saloon with my girl and not go in?" asks John A. "Use a flying machine," says the way-up editor.

T. E. White, St. Louis, writes: "You know so much, how do you parse?" "That that I spoke of is not that that I thought that that that was!" "Wouldn't that kill you?" is the editor's comment.

"Evanville" inquires "How am I to get a new set of teeth?" I see that Charles William Porter, who resides with his daughter, Mrs. James Stembridge, at Owensburg, Ky., and who is now 73 years of age, is now growing the sixth tooth of his third set of teeth and feels other teeth coming through. I am losing my second set and have an aversion to store teeth. How may I grow a third set?" "Write to Mr. Charles William Porter," says the editor. "We're not yet 73."

Percy: Who are the meanest people on earth? Harold: Who? Percy: Penmakers. Harold: Why? Percy: Don't they make you steel pens and claim they do write?

"Did you ever hear the story of the two holes in the ground?" "No."

"Well, well!"

What is most like a horse's foot? A mare's foot.

Why is a cat on her hind legs like a waterfall? She is cat erect (cataclysm).

What is that word of five letters of which when you take away two only one remains? Stone.

Why is a locomotive like a man? Because it smokes and whistles when it goes out.

Why is the devil always a gentleman? Because the temp of darkness can't be imp' light (impolite).

When will there be 26 letters in the alphabet? When U and I are one.

Why is a bow-legged man like a holiday in the South? Because you see the negroes (knee grows) out.

When will the streets of Boston be well laid out? When they are half as deep as those of Philadelphia.

What river runs through Philadelphia? Why, nothing ever ran through Philadelphia.

When is a clock on the stairs dangerous? When it runs down and strikes one.

Why is a lucky gambler always an agreeable fellow? Because he has such winning ways.

By O. B. JOYFUL

A terrible sensation was created at 10 o'clock last night when a desperate gang of vaudevillians, maddened by the great work of humanity now being carried on by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Humor, made a savage assault on the Old Jokes' Home and liberated more than 500 of the inmates, carrying them away captive, to be impressed into further service on the stage.

These vaudevillians not only broke in the doors of the institution, but seized the venerable and amiable Dr. I. Ketchum, the general manager of the O. J. H., and stamped up on his prostrate form with their spiked shoes.

Those two great humanitarians, Prof. Doem Goode and Prof. Heza Corker, ran to the rescue of Dr. Ketchum, but of what avail were their blows against this maddened mob of vaudevillians?

Had it not been for the presence of Jerry Sullivan (driver of the busy blue ambulance and Joe Miller, the chestnut horse.)

and 100 of his friends, who at that very hour were enjoying a banquet, celebrating the capture of the 10,000th old gag for the O. J. H., murder would undoubtedly have been committed, and the venerable and amiable Dr. Ketchum at this moment would be no more.

As it was, the mob were driven away in the darkness and escaped. But their names are known. Bobby Gaylor was the leader of these desperate vaudevillians, and Eddie Girard and Lew Hawkins were right behind him. There were ten others, and they will all be captured and punished. Mark what we say!

A reward of $5 is offered for each of the 500 old jokes which escaped or were taken into captivity. Address communications to O. B. Joyful, Old Jokes' Home, care of the Post-Dispatch.

Here are the latest old-timers brought in for the rest cure by the busy blue ambulance:

"My uncle died and left everything he had to an orphan asylum."

"What did he have?"

"Twelve children."

"Did you ever hear the story about the three eggs?"

"No. What is it?"

"Two had."

What is it that Adam only of all mankind never saw and never possessed? Peasants.

THEIR PRIVILEGE.

"There's Mrs. Brown wearing the same gown she wore last year."

"Yes; but the Browns are so rich that they can afford to be eccentric."

OPPOSITE ROLES.

"You say that Scrobbles and you played in opposite roles on the night he ran away with the box receipts? How was that?"

"While I was appearing he was disappearing."—Baltimore Herald.

GENEROUS ZEKKE.

"Maria," drawled Farmer Cawfoot, "you have worked pretty hard in the last six months."

"Yes, Zekke," replied the weary wife. "Well, your industry shall be repaid. I am going to make you a present."

"O, Zekke, are you going to buy me a new coat?"

"No; but you can have the old home blanket to make over into a golf cape. Nobody shall say I am stingy."

CORBIN INVITES ATTACHES TO FAIR

Military Men of Foreign Embassies to Be Guests at Dedication.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, April 17.—Gen. Corbin has invited the military attaches of all the foreign legations in Washington to be his guests at the World's Fair dedication in St. Louis April 30, and probably all will accept.

Gen. Corbin will be grand marshal and the attaches will ride beside him in their gold-laced and plumed uniforms. They will be escorted by Gen. Corbin and he will entertain them on the trip and while they are in St. Louis.

In this way Gen. Corbin will return some of the courtesies he received from their governments while he was in Europe last summer.

The agitation started by some of Gen. Corbin's friends for the formation of a new club and the general withdrawal of army officers from the Metropolitan Club, on account of the rejection of Gen. Corbin's membership, seems to have died out. Gen. Corbin himself discourages the movement.

PERMANENT STATUES AT FAIR

Missouri Commission Sets Aside $30,000 for Features to Remain in Forest Park.

Permanent statuary to commemorate the Louisiana Purchase Exposition was provided for by the Missouri State Commission, which set aside $30,000. Thursday, for statues of Napoleon, Jefferson, and a statue symbolic of Missouri.

May 2 was selected as the date for the laying of the cornerstones of the Missouri state building.

Daniel C. French was selected to make the bronze statue of Napoleon. J. Q. A. Ward will make the Jefferson statue and Sterling Calder will model "Missouri." All of these statues are to remain in Forest Park after the fair and it is expected some other states will erect statuary in the terrace of states.

OLD MAID ON RACE SUICIDE

Miss Higginson Says Mothers Have Not Joined the President in His Complaint.

PITTSFORD, Mass., April 17.—The western New York old maid's convention has opened here.

Miss Amelia Higginson, the president, in her opening address, said:

"President Roosevelt believes in the rearing of large families. He has a right to his opinion, but when he places childlessness in the same category with criminal acts, he goes too far.

"The President is the father of what we Americans would call a large family. He is not the mother of a large family. We have heard nothing about race suicide from the mothers of America, and we never shall.

"Let the President grapple with the trusts, the tariff and the coming election. They are more in his line. He can save the question of babies in the hands of the women of his great republic."

MRS. BERG GETS JUDGMENT.

Mrs. Anna Berg was given a verdict for $218.50 against William Kilpel, a policeman, in Judge Flinn's court.

In 1905 Mrs. Berg's home was sold under a deed of trust and she testified that Kilpel persuaded her to buy it back and to do it to him, under representation that he was a widower and would marry her after she got a divorce from her husband. Later, when she learned he was a married man, she sued him for the expense in again acquiring the property.

DOCTORS ENDORSE HERPICIDE

Because Its Formula Is Submitted to Them.

Alexander McMillan, M. D., a prominent physician of Lansing, Michigan, writes: "On three cases I have tested Herpicide for dandruff and the result has been all that could be desired."

Herpicide is made upon an entirely new principle, that is, that dandruff and falling hair are caused from a microbe that infects the hair bulb, and, by destroying the microbe one's hair is bound to grow luxuriantly. Herpicide is the only hair remedy, that claims to, and really does, destroy the dandruff germs. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.
